

Invitation to Hungarian Applied Linguists' Congress

The Hungarian Association of Applied Linguists and Language Teachers (HALLT) <http://www.kodolanyi.hu/manye> has the pleasure to invite linguists from all over the world to its XXth Annual Convention to be held at

DEBRECEN UNIVERSITY

DEBRECEN city, Hungary

August 26-28. 2010

The Congress is going to be attended by approximately 300 participants – mainly from Hungary and the surrounding countries, but attendees are welcome from any region and country. In a broad sense of applied linguistics the following fields represent individual sessions at the congress: foreign language teaching, language policy, translation theories, applied psycho linguistics, applied social linguistics, intercultural communication, language pedagogy, teaching and research of terminology, Hungarian language (mother tongue and foreign language) teaching and research, computer linguistics, gender studies, FL for special purposes. The working language is principally Hungarian, but individual contributions in main foreign languages are also acceptable.

The home page of the forthcoming HALLT Congress is www.manyexx.unideb.hu The lectures of the Congress are published in a Conference Proceedings eventually accompanied by a CD. The Proceedings are available for the time of the following Congress; they can be collected or purchased at the venue of the Conference. Proceedings of earlier congresses are possible to be obtained from the Secretariat.
